This Week in Wabash

Hello, Wabash,

Happy Monday. I hope your week is off to a great start. We had a chance to visit the park this weekend, but the heat and humidity we've been experiencing the past few days made it a perfect breeding ground for mosquitoes. We didn't prepare any bug spray ahead of time and we, unfortunately, all got bit pretty extensively. It was a learning lesson, though. We won't make that mistake again.

I wanted to call your attention to two stories that were in the newspaper last week and alert you two more related stories in the newspaper this week.

As I've mentioned before, one of my favorite things about working in Wabash is its proximity to the Honeywell Center. I've had countless opportunities to interview amazing acts before their respective performances. (And, not to toot my own horn, but I've even won a few awards for these stories.)

Last week, a pair of tribute acts played Wabash and I had a chance to interview members of each beforehand.

The first was ARRIVAL from Sweden, an ABBA tribute act that features musicians who played with the original band. The interview was conducted almost a year ago, but I finally had a chance to share it ahead of their performance.

The second was Thunderstruck, an AC/DC tribute act. AC/DC has always been one of my favorite bands, so this was a fun one for me. It was great revisiting the highlights of the band's career while working on the story.

I hope you had a chance to read the stories. Maybe you were even fortunate enough to attend one of the shows.

In this Wednesday's paper, I'll have two more such preview stories, but these will be in the comedy vein. The first will be the comedy duo The Karens, and the second will be "Saturday Night Live" alum Jim Breuer. Both were really interesting interviews and I'm excited for you to read the stories this week.

Well, that's all I have for you today. I hope you have a great rest of your week.

Best,
Rob
